the tolling amounted to 88 days so you add 88 days to Oct 19 incl Oct 19

Oct 19 - 31 is 13 days

Nov 30 days

Dec 31 days

$13 + 30 + 31 = 74$

$88 - 74 = 14$

Jan 14 is what I get for the tolled expiry date

Dear Mr. Konowal,

I have been given your name by your office at Planning and Zoning as the Planner assigned to the application for an extension of time variance to establish a sand and gravel and rubble landfill operation special exception on property located in the Odenton area of AA County, preparing the application for forwarding to the Office of Administrative Hearings. I was advised that the application has been assigned case number 2020-0130-V, and that you had found the application to have been timely filed. This project is currently being processed under a previously granted extension of time by the Board of Appeals in Case Numbers BA 12-13V and BA 13-13V dated October 19, 2018. At that time the Planner from your office was John Fury who is no longer there. The extension of time was for a period of two years. I understand from Notices issued by your office that there were executive orders granting extension of time to all deadlines given to projects under the purview of your office. I also understand that this extension due to COVID has been lifted. By my calculation, the extension would provide that the existing extension of time on this variance continues until January 10, 2021. Please advise if I am correct on this analysis. I would like to speak with you about this project if possible. Please contact me at this email address or call my office at 410-280-0530.
